The project “Commitment to accessibility”.

In 2026, part of the Winter Olympics will be in Anterselva.

Anterselva is a town in the northeast of South Tyrol.

Many people from different countries will come to the Winter Olympics:

- To take part.
- And to watch.

Everything should be easy for everyone to use.

That’s why there is this project called “Commitment to accessibility”.

This project is about removing barriers.

All businesses in South Tyrol can join this project.

For example:

- Hotels.
- Restaurants.
- Swimming pools.
- And museums.

In this project, businesses tell us about their accessibility.

For example:

- Is there a parking space for people with disabilities?
- Are there stairs or a lift?
- Is there an accessible toilet?

The accessibility information is on the website “Südtirol für alle”.

This is German and means "South Tyrol for all".

The information on this website will only be in German and Italian.

But businesses can also show the information on their own website.

This information is available in these languages:

- Easy Read English.
- Easy Read Italian.
- And Easy Read German.

And this information is especially important for:

- Families with small children.
- People with a walking disability.
- People with a visual impairment.
- People with a hearing impairment and deaf people.
- And people with learning difficulties or cognitive disabilities.

This project helps everyone go to all places and join in.

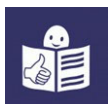

The project "Commitment to accessibility" is a project
by the Autonomous Province of Bolzano – South Tyrol.
Team for the "Winter Olympics and Paralympics Milano Cortina 2026".
